building your new home

Let's say you're one of the many people edging toward retirement. You want to take the next step, buying the perfect home in the perfect place where you'll spend your retirement years. Yet the news about the housing market and economic conditions in general has you a little nervous, hesitant, wondering whether now is a good time to take the step, given that selling your current home may take some time.

Lighthouse Crossing has a solution that gives you the option to take a small step toward the next step without the risk of jumping in with both feet.

Buy your lot now at Lighthouse Crossing. You can lock in a price for the lot, lock in a price for the home, lock in all the options and incentives being offered right now on a Lighthouse Crossing home—and then wait up to two years if necessary before building your new Lighthouse Crossing home.

It's a plan and a solution that gives you the opportunity to take a small step now toward your retirement dream, with the time and breathing room you may need to sell your current home.
